Reading Language Arts/English Philosophy

Literacy learning and habits begin in the home and community. The Singapore American School builds on these foundations to nurture and develop effective readers, writers, and communicators.

To promote the development of the literate student, we advocate a student-centered, interactive approach that emphasizes listening, speaking, reading, and writing. A diversity of genres, time periods and perspectives provides opportunities for students to experience, interpret and use language in meaningful contexts for a variety of purposes and audiences.

Ultimately, our goal is to empower our students to be critical and creative thinkers who can reflect, adapt and flourish in a changing world as competent and positive communicators throughout their lives.
